The National Student Loan Data System (NSLDS) indicates that you received an overpayment of federal aid. The U.S. Department of Education notified you of this problem in the Comments section of your FAFSA Submission Summary.

You must repay federal aid that you were not entitled to receive. You are not eligible for additional financial aid until you resolve your overpayment. Your eligibility for financial aid can be restored if you can provide documentation that you have resolved your overpayment.

Check the box that applies to you:

I have paid off my federal aid overpayment. A copy of the documentation issued by the school or the Department of Education showing that the overpayment has been resolved is attached.

I have successfully made satisfactory arrangements to repay the amount I owe. A copy of documentation stating I am eligible to regain the use of Title IV student aid issued by the Department of Education is attached.

If you have not yet repaid your federal aid overpayment, please log into Federal Student Aid with your FSA ID and password and review your Title IV aid. You will need to contact your prior school(s) to find out how to repay the overpayment. Until you repay the overpayment or make satisfactory repayment arrangements, you are ineligible for further Title IV financial assistance.

I hereby certify that to the best of my knowledge, all of the information provided is true and complete. I understand that false statements or misrepresentations will be cause for denial or repayment of financial aid.
